Background

The Council is proposing a new walking and cycling route linking Roseburn to the Union Canal via a series of bridges over the existing railway lines and Dalry Road as well as a crossing on West Approach Road.

This will fill in a key missing link between the existing off road networks including the North Edinburgh path network via Roseburn Path (NCN1) and the Union Canal (NCN75).

Also planned is an off road link along the north side of the West Approach Road as far as Morrison Crescent, allowing safer and more convenient access to the Morrison Street area avoiding the Haymarket junction.

The current route is not suitable for less confident cyclists. The project will overcome major barriers to movement between the Roseburn Path and the Union Canal including:

- > using fairly busy and narrow streets such as Russell Road
- > turning right on busy Dalry Road; and
- > crossing the West Approach Road via the Telfer Subway.
